The ICLARS Series on Law and Religion is a new series designed to provide a forum for the rapidly expanding field of research in law and religion. The series is published in association with the International Consortium for Law and Religion Studies, an international network of scholars and experts of law and religion founded in 2007 with the aim of providing a place where information, data and opinions can easily be exchanged among members and made available to the broader scientific community. The series aims to become a primary source for students and scholars while presenting authors with a valuable means to reach a wide and growing readership.

Notes on contributors

Francesca Cadeddu is Research Fellow at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, and at the Fondazione per le scienze religiose Giovanni XXIII in Bologna. She is affiliated to the Faiths and Civil Society Unit at Goldsmiths University of London and serves as secretary general of the European Academy of Religion. She works on the history of American Catholicism in the twentieth century and on religious literacy in Italy and Europe. Among her recent publications on religious pluralism are Blasfemia, diritti e libertà. Una discussione dopo le stragi di Parigi, edited by A. Melloni, F. Cadeddu and F. Meloni (Il Mulino 2015), and 'Sostenere l'islam in Europa attraverso la conoscenza', in Dall'islam in Europa all'islam europeo. La sfida dell'integrazione, edited by M. el Ayoubi and C. Paravati (Carocci 2018).

Grace Davie is Professor Emeritus of Sociology at the University of Exeter. She is a specialist in the sociology of religion and has worked extensively on the European case. Her latest publications include Religion in Britain: A Persistent Paradox (Wiley-Blackwell 2015) and Religion in Public Life: Levelling the Ground (Theos 2017). She was also a coordinating lead author for the chapter on religion in Rethinking Society for the 21st Century, vol. 3, Transformations in Values, Norms, Cultures (Cambridge University Press 2018), which is the report of the International Panel on Social Progress.

Donatella Di Cesare teaches Theoretical Philosophy at Sapienza University in Rome and Philosophical Hermeneutics at Scuola Normale Superiore in Pisa. She is one of the most influential philosophers in the academic and media international debate, and writes on the Corriere della Sera. Among her latest publications are Stranieri residenti. Una filosofia della migrazione (Bollati Boringhieri 2017), Heidegger and the Jews: The Black Notebooks (Polity Press 2018) and Torture (Polity Press 2018).

Adam Dinham is an interdisciplinary academic combining theology and religious studies, sociology of religion, social work and social policy, public policy and politics. He is director of the Faiths and Civil Society Unit at Goldsmiths University of London; professor of Religious Literacy at VID Specialized University in Oslo; honorary professor of Religion, Leadership and Society at the University of Sheffield; fellow of the Westminster Abbey Institute for Faith and Public Life; and chair of the BSA Sociology of Religion Study Group (SocRel). He edited Religious Literacy in Policy and Practice with M. Francis (Policy Press 2015) and Re-imagining Religion and Belief: 21st Century Policy and Practice with C. Baker and B.R. Crisp (Routledge 2018).

Mary Earl has trained teachers of Theology, Religious Studies and Philosophy at the University of Cambridge's Faculty of Education for over twenty-five years. Before that she
